

SURRENDERED ITALY IS TRANSFORMED INTO GIANT BATTLEGROUND; LANDING
MADE AT NAPLES; SET UP BRIDGEHEADS

With Allies in Naples, German Troops in Southern Italy Are Faced With Entrapment Unless Withdrawal is Speeded—Bitter Clashes Between Italian and German Troops Already Reported in Isolated Areas.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 9.—(INS)— Surrendered Italy was transformed into a giant battleground today when American and British troops landed successfully at Naples and other forces opened a new bridgehead at San Eufemia in the north of the Calabrian Peninsula.

(Editor's Note—Axis broadcasts meanwhile reported unconfirmed Allied landings at various points "in the heart of Italy" and spoke of heavy British naval concentrations off Genoa. Landings on Sardinia also were reported by Berlin.)

A few hours after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced that the United States Fifth Army and British forces under Lieut. Gen.
Mark W. Clark had swept ashore at Naples, a naval communique disclosed the new landing at San Eufemia.

Three bridgeheads thus have been established for the eventual drive against Rome. The Allies are now at Naples and San Eufemia and pushing steadily through the southwestern tip of Calabria.

With the Allies in Naples, German troops in southern Italy are faced with entrapment unless they speed up their withdrawal.

To the People of this Community:

YOUR INVASION DAY!

Today is THIRD WAR LOAN opening day—Today is INVA-SION DAY for you. Today you land from the assault boats. Today you make a run for the target. Today you crouch in a foxhole and pray to God that the folks back home are safe. Today you lounge forward in a tank against enemy artillery fire. Invasion! Bloody invasion!

No, you are not going to face the peril in person. Your son, your brother, your husband and your friends will take care of that job. You can— you must penetrate Axis territory with your dollars. Someone you hold near and dear may fall, if you are not awake to your new invasion responsibilities. The Third War Loan is a hurry call from the Commander-in-chief for every last penny and dollar for War Bonds to double and triple the supplies for our invasion armies. Back the attack with a minimum of an EXTRA $100 War Bond today. That's the very least you can do to help your fighting boys.

QUARTER SESSIONS COURT

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 9.—President Judge Hiram H. Keller and Judge Calvin S. Boyer had "a busy day" at yesterday's session of miscellaneous Quarter Sessions Court.

Michael Chuma, 29, who once lived in Perkasio, was brought back into the county from the Eastern State Penitentiary long enough to plead guilty to stealing an automobile belonging to Edward Barringer, of Perkasio in December, 1938.

Judge Keller sentenced Chuma to serve not less than two and one-half or more than five years in the "Pen," with the sentence beginning at the expiration of the minimum sentence he is now serving, or from the expiration of a commutation of sentence he may get in the future.

The Court described Chuma as a "tame" and lost no time in pronouncing sentence. Chuma has served 25 months in the Huntingdon Reformatory, four years and eight months in the Schuylkill county prison and the 7½ to 15 year sen-

Tame Landing Climaxes the Trip With Convoy Across the Atlantic

LANDING WAS DULL

(Following is the final article in a series of six by Leo V. Dolan, chief of the London bureau of INS, who recently returned to England after a vacation in the United States. Mr. Dolan has given a first-hand view of the thrills and dangers of convoy travel.)

By Leo V. Dolan
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

AN ENGLISH SEAPORT, Sept. 9 (Delayed) — (INS) — Safe, sound and sunbunt, we're speeding south from a Scottish seaport today. London-bound on an ordinary train—weak anti-climax to a convoy crossing of the Atlantic jam-packed with thrills.

It doesn't seem right, somehow.
There should have been a dramatic finale but there wasn't. Our landing was disappointingly dull. Even peacetime's disembarkation excitement was lacking.

Over the side tumbled our luggage and over the side and down a swaying rope ladder we clambered, dropping into a waiting tender. That was our goodbye to the rusty old hooker that had been our home and haven for several weeks.

It was good to feel solid ground underfoot again, but it wasn't good to find that human nature is still human nature. In the few feet between the pier and the customs shed, somebody swiped three oranges I had treasured all the way across to give a treat to the boys in the London office who haven't seen an orange in four years.

Likewise dull were the last few days of our voyage. After our last brush with the submarines we just dreamed along unmolested, our aircraft carriers keeping her patrols constantly aloft. Then, one day, we grew slightly uncomfortable as the carrier and her destroyer screen swung away and disappeared without explanation over the horizon.

The explanation soon thundered into view in the shape of a Sunderland of the RAF Coastal Command and from thence onward we were under constant escort of these beautiful flying craft—up to the moment we sighted the craggy headlands of Scotland.

We made port at midday and there were hurried goodbyes then to Doc and Skipper, Doc bound for his Manchester "heartside" and Skipper returning to the wife and nippers he hadn't seen for years.
Alex, now with his beloved RAF, found that the RAF was waiting for him. He was met by an Air Ministry official and put on ice until the train pulled out from the station, and lucky for us that he was so met for we found seats waiting for us in the train. That is something that is rare beyond belief in wartime Britain.

That's the end of this story of convoy. It's the third crossing for me and if I don't make another until sanity returns to the world I won't feel hurt.

But no man steps off a mer-chanter these days without a feeling of gratitude and admiration for those unsung heroes, the boys of the British Merchant Navy, who continue to put to sea voyage after voyage in full knowledge that they may not return.

So to them, to the men who man the corvettes and destroyers, to the fresh-faced lads who lift their planes into the air from plunging flight decks—to all of them, a salute from your correspondent.

Formations of RAF fighters resumed the cross-Channel offensive this afternoon heading into in the direction of Calais at an altitude of 20,000 feet.

The amphibious Channel exercises carried out under the terrific curtain of bombers and fighters that swept overhead were the most extensive maneuvers of their type yet staged. Several different ports and large numbers of men and ships participated.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

Lewis D. Barton, 19, ship's cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. M.
Barton, 302 Otter street, Bristol, has completed basic training at the Submarine School, Submarine Base, New London, Conn., for duty with our growing fleet of undersea fighters.

S/C Barton will be entitled to wear the twin dolphin insignia of the submarine service after further experience aboard a submarine during which he must demonstrate to his commanding officer that he is fully qualified to carry out the duties of his rate. The insignia is regarded as a mark of distinction throughout the Navy.

Barton attended Bristol High, joined the Navy last October and had recruit instruction at Bainbridge, Maryland, naval training station.

The Submarine School, the only one of its kind in the Navy, is attended by a picked group of men who must pass special physical, mental, and psychological tests.

The school work takes place not only in classrooms and laboratories, but also in numerous training submarines in which students master the actual techniques of operating the powerful fighting craft.

Many students at Submarine School already have seen battle as members of surface ship crews before volunteering for submarine duty. Others are fresh from training stations, but all graduates are sure of action once they are assigned to a submarine due for offensive patrol.
Large numbers of recent students now are serving in submarines which have sunk enemy naval or merchant vessels.

POSTWAR JOBS

Leaders of organized labor are becoming alarmed about reports that many people believe that a postwar depression is inevitable. They know that if there is a postwar depression there will be much unemployment, and they know that when there is unemployment, many union members drop out or cease to pay dues.

In a recent speech, George Meany, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, said: "We of the American Federation of Labor refuse to accept the theory that a depression is inevitable after the war. We do not have to have a depression, and, as a matter of fact, we must not have a depression."

His safeguard against a depression is government encouragement of industrial expansion. He said that "the government should not only permit but stimulate opportunity to make a reasonable and fair profit. An enterprise which makes a fair profit is willing to expand. Expansion spells more jobs, and that is what labor will want." So much for the words.

The fact is, of course, that the labor lobby has consistently and with considerable success supported every New Deal act to reduce profits or tax profits away, discourage enterprise and the creation of new jobs. It has tried to hamstring management with a monopoly of labor, which is just as vicious when the end result is considered as monopoly of raw material, transportation or any other factor that enters into the price of goods sold or services rendered.

It has offered no objection to the war contract renegotiation policy now being carried out which is denying many industries the means to expand following the war. Labor can help to avert the threatened depression, but its leaders will have to be more far-sighted and less selfish.

MARKETS AND DEMOCRACY

When people speak of the Four Freedoms, they seldom think of the freedom of the market place. But hearken to a few words on this type of freedom by Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in an address to the National Association of Securities Commissioners in New York City, Mr. Schram said:

"It is no mere coincidence that the securities markets in the United States and Great Britain are permitted to reflect the progress of the war; they express from day to day the acutely sensitive appraisal by investors of all factors and developments affecting our economy. There is no censorship of our markets and none is needed."

Here is a form of freedom of expression with which the Axis powers would have no truck. Buyers and sellers in the securities markets not only evaluate events, but back up their decisions with hard cash. They give their opinions on everything from the fall of Sicily to the development of a competitive industry in the Belgian Congo.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

"Mr. Lucky." Cary Grant's new starring film tells what happens when a self-made gambler clashes with a Manhattan socialite. Around this theme the picture builds an unusual story of romance, scheming and conflict that is said to make it one of the most entertaining vehicles of the year.

The two principals meet. Grant, trying to promote a bankroll so he can take his luxurious gambling boat to South American waters, is also dodging the draft by posing as another man. Laraine Day, the Park Avenue girl, is endeavoring to raise $100,000 for War Relief, Inc., so a cargo of medical supplies can be sent overseas.

RITZ THEATRE

Jane Parker and Robert Paige are together again for the eighth picture since they have been under contract to Universal studio. Their marathon screen romance, being continued currently in the Ritz Brothers' comedy tunefilm, "Hiya Chum," has reached the point where studio technicians call the actress "Mrs. Paige." She sings a special duet with Paige in the new production which is now at the Ritz Theatre.

BRISTOL THEATRE

One of the wettest parts ever played by a film actor is that which fell to I. Stanford Jolley in the new P. R. C. drama, "The Black Raven," which opens today at the Bristol Theatre.

The enemy works in mysterious ways to sabotage the United Nations' war effort and one of them is shown in Warner Bros. "The Mysterious Doctor," which opens today at the Bristol Theatre.

Audio Visual Aid Program For Schools

This action of the Directors Association is considered in educational circles as placing the Bucks County Directors out in advance in similar groups of the State. It is the same Association which was the first to begin a program of providing technical equipment to survey the ears and eyes of pupils. It was the Bucks County Council of P. T. A.'s that added the ophthalmograph to the equipment. This is being used to check the pupils who have special reading disabilities.

The new program will swing into full operation after the war. The recordings now being placed in the county record library cover a variety of subjects. Many of them supplement the work in history and language. Other records are especially prepared for speech correction work. In the past school year the Association undertook a Speech Correction Program in a small scale with Dr. Ruth Feder in charge. History in the elementary schools will be the field to be covered by sound films. Paul L. Gruber is in charge of the audio visual aids program as well as the audio visual testing program.

More clinical equipment will be purchased in the post-war period.

Paterson Parchment Paper Company.

The young members of the Blue Star Brigade will be at all of the theatres in this area this evening, participating in the third war loan drive.

At the Bristol and Grand Theatres in Bristol, and at the Ritz in Croydon, the girls and boys will lend their support to put the drive for war bonds over the top, doing their share to "Back the Attack."

They will be heralded by the fine entertainment of the Legion Cadets. These little children, "soldiers of America," have pledged themselves to fight at the home front for the duration of the third war loan drive.

Elmer VanZant, chairman of the Bensalem area, will have his Blue Star Brigade present. James Harris, chairman of Croydon, will open the rally at the Ritz Theatre in Croydon; Mrs. John Leslie Kilcoyne, chairman of the Bristol area, having with her Tullytown, Edgely, Headley Manor, Emile and Bristol children to represent this part of the county.

It is hoped that all the parents and friends of these children will be present at one of these theaters to show their appreciation for the great work which the children have undertaken, states Mrs. Kilcoyne.

John Leslie Kilcoyne will introduce the various chairmen at the theatres.

Back the Attack with War Bonds!

Surrendered Italy Is Transformed Into Giant Battleground

LONDON, Sept. 9.—(INS)—Italy was expected today to be turned into a grim battleground with German forces determined to fight desperately against the landing of Allied armies despite the capitulation of the Italian government to unconditional surrender demands.

The German Radio Atlantic, according to a Stockholm dispatch, reported that Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring had ordered German forces in Italy to hold their positions.

Bitter clashes between Italian troops and Germans already were reported in isolated areas. The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported that German troops still were in Rome last night.

Another Stockholm report said the Italian fleet had sailed from the Spezia naval base to Sicily in compliance with an order from Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham directing Italian warships to make their way to Allied ports.

Radio Algiers said the Italian government had ordered all ships, trains and trucks carrying Germans to Italy to be halted.

It was reported from Ancey that the commander-in-chief of Italian occupation forces had informed Vichy authorities that Italian troops had been ordered into barracks while preparations were made for their return to Italy.

OUR VICTORY GARDEN

"Man With Hoe" is "Man Behind The Gun"

By Jane Cochran

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(INS)—In addition to the vegetables you put up in cans, you'll have quite a number that can and should be stored without cooking. Storage of Victory Garden vegetables is an important part of the program of raising and conserving the products you raise for your family's winter use.

The first question, logically, is where to store these surplus beans, peas, carrots, and other vegetables from your backyard garden?

The answer is that the best place to store most vegetables is in a cellar or basement storage room where the air can be kept damp and the temperature as low as possible without freezing. However, if you don't have a suitable basement storage room, don't let that stop you. You can make use of the cellar, the attic, a large closet, or other parts of the house, depending upon the character of the product you want to store.

Construction of a storage room isn't a complicated matter. Usually, all that is required is a vermin proof partition around the required space. Good vegetable and fruit storage rooms can be built in cellars where turnips or boilers are installed. In a storage room fitted with floor bins, shelves may be placed above them for cabbage, Chinese cabbage, Brussels sprouts, canned fruits and vegetables. Some people prefer crates, boxes and barrels for fruit and vegetables.

Vermin-proofing the storage room is absolutely essential. All your good work will go for naught if rats and mice get into the room.

The window should have a good, removable screen that can be fastened securely in place. The doorway should have a screen door with a secure latch. The screens permit the free passage of air and at the same time keep out vermin.

Proper temperature must be maintained. Generally speaking, vegetables freeze at 29 to 31 degrees Fahrenheit. Freezing must be prevented but the closer the temperature is to 32 degrees Fahrenheit, the longer the vegetables will keep. In the early fall, naturally, it will be impossible to obtain a temperature this low, but the sooner the room can be brought below 50 degrees, the better.

Best storage conditions can be maintained in a house-cellar storage room with at least one outside window or opening for ventilation, and for cooling in the fall. Cooling can be controlled by means of the door and window or by opening for ventilation.

On the other hand, when extremely cold weather comes, the storage room may need some heat. A cheap, safe, and usually effective method is to suspend a 100-watt bulb on a good extension cord, so that it is near the floor. You'll need to check the temperature. Guess-work isn't enough. So, it would be wise to hang a reliable thermometer in the storage room, about half-way between the floor and the ceiling.

Moisture is another factor in keeping of vegetables in storage. Most vegetables are composed of 85 per cent water. Unless the moisture content of the air is high, they will soon shrivel, and may spoil. For the effective storage of most vegetables, keep the floor damp at all times. In some storage rooms, it may be necessary to throw water on the floor from time to time.

If the floor is naturally moist, so much the better. If the room tends to get unduly cold, a pail of water on the floor will help to warn you when there is danger of freezing close to the floor.

Before the vegetables will freeze, a thin coating of ice will form on the water. That's the danger signal. Outdoor storage barrels and boxes may be used for vegetables requiring cool, moist surroundings. Potatoes, cabbage and apples keep fairly well if storage is not too moist. But, experts warn, outdoor storage places are not suitable for beans, onions, pumpkins or squash.

One caution in this connection: Don't attempt to store your Victory Garden produce too early. Placing vegetables in storage, either in basement rooms or pits while the weather is still too warm, is frequently a cause of early spoilage of the precious products.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)

Pastor

Bristol Presbyterian Church

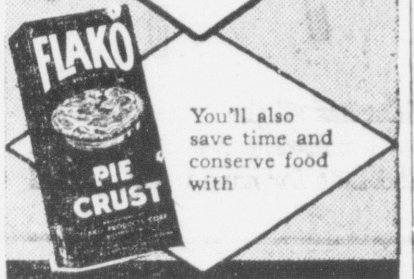

Almighty and Eternal God, steady Thou our staggering faith, clarify our vision, intensify our desire to be free from all that is sinful in thy sight. Bring us into harmony with thyself, Thy purpose, Thy life. Create within us a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within us. Save us from narrowness and selfishness. Bless us and make us a blessing. May we not be reservoirs, but channels, through which Thy grace may flow into other lives that pine for Thee. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

ROHM & HAAS WINS GRIP ON HONORS OF SUBURBAN CIRCUIT

Chemical Workers Held To Only One Hit But Win The Game

FINAL SCORE IS 3 TO 0

Runs Scored Were All Results of Errors and Wildness of Pitchers

Although again held to one hit, the Rohm and Haas team managed to score enough runs to win the first game of the playoff series to determine the championship of the Bristol Suburban League. Final score was: Rohm and Haas, 3; Diamond, 0.

The lone hit made by the chemical workers, a single to rightfield by Hutchison in the second, did not play any part in the scoring as the entire trio of markers made by the winners were the result of errors and wildness on the part of the hurlers.

Dick Hirst started on the mound for Diamond and gave way to George Friedman in the third. Hutchison's hit was made off the delivery of Hirst while Friedman did not allow a bingle, although nicked for a run in the fifth.

"Eddie" Sullivan did the hit work for the winners and again turned in a beautiful performance to keep the Diamond runners from the plate. Sullivan also blanked the Hill Streeters in the first game which ended in a scoreless dead-end. During the regular season in their final meeting, Carnvale shut out the Diamond team for Rohm and Haas to keep the Morgansmen away from the plate in three straight games.

Sullivan was solved for five hits last evening and was in bad spots in the second, fourth, and sixth innings. But his slow curve proven a mighty weapon when needed and kept his record clean. Sullivan had six strikeouts and allowed but one pass. He fanned the side of Keegan, Roe and Pappaterra in the third.

The Maple Beach aggregation scored twice in the third frame. Caro got a lift when Baurth errored on his grounder. Murphy forced Caro. Hetherington hit to Wolf who had the runner at first but DeRisi dropped the ball. Klein struck out for the second out. G. Ritter drew a pass to load the bags. Hunter was hit with a pitched ball, forcing in Murphy with a run. Friedman relieved Hirst at this stage of the game. Sullivan was passed and Hetherington came in. Hutchison struck out.

The third Rohm and Haas run came in the fifth. With one gone, Pappaterra threw low to first after stopping Klein's roller. Ritter hit to Baurth whose throw to second was too late to get Klein. Hunter forced Ritter at second, but in attempting a double play, Baurth threw wild to first. Klein scoring. Sullivan rolled out.

In the Diamond second inning, Hirst and Friedman singled but the latter was caught off first. The fourth saw the Diamond team pass up its best opportunity. With one gone, Wolf hit safely. DeRisi fled out. But Weiser singled and Hirst was walked to fill the bags but Friedman watched a third strike go by.

An attempted Diamond rally went for naught in the sixth. With one out, Wolf again singled. DeRisi hit to Hetherington who fumbled but Weiser and Hirst were easy outs.
